- B. Take a bit of time to reflect on what virtues you would like to strengthen in yourself—both in general and as they relate to psychology. What virtues are you good at and which are you weak at? What practices would you need to engage in to make such virtues become a habit—something that is your first impulse, an almost automatic response? What is a specific scenario that you can think of (related to psychology if possible, but it can also be in daily life) where possessing that virtue or those virtues would result in a different outcome? Write a paragraph about this.
